

LITERARY NOTES.

"Richard Vandermarck" is the title of a new book by the author of "Rutherford," which is announced for publication by Charles Loring. The author, whose name has hitherto kept secret, is now said to be Mr. John H. Davis, the wife of a New-York lawyer.

"Richard Vandermarck" is the life of an orphan girl told by herself, and is described as a story of considerable interest.

Scribner's Monthly will be considerably enlarged with the November number, and its pages will be still more varied and popular in literary matter, and still richer in pictorial attractions. This number will contain an account under the title of "Thirty Seven Days of Peril" of the adventures of Mr. Everts, who was lost from the Yellow-Stone Expedition of 1869. His mental hallucinations, while wandering among the mountains in a starved, almost dying condition, were of the most curious character; and his story is not a little interesting in a psychological point of view. A detailed article describing the remarkable mining and submarine blasting operations of the Governmental Helgate, and along the East River, Other notable features are Joquin Miller's poem, "From Sea to Sea"; stories by Mrs. F. M. Phillips, author of "Gardener"; Edward Eggleston, and others.
